Burmeses workers sign up for 'ethical recruitment' scheme

Some 300 Elephant workers are considering joining a “ethical recruitment” program at a new construction site in the country’s northern Shan State.

The “Ethical Recruitment” scheme is being developed by the Shan State’s Shan State Local Development Foundation (SSLDF) in collaboration with the Shan State government.

The scheme aims to improve the conditions of workers in the construction industry, which is often seen as exploitative and unfair to workers.

Under the scheme, workers will be paid a fair wage and provided with basic necessities such as food and shelter.

SSLDF has already started recruiting workers for the scheme and is hoping to expand it to other areas.

Workers interested in joining the scheme are encouraged to contact SSLDF for more information.

Related Stories

Opinion & Analysis

More Education

In Photos

Leave a Reply

Note: You must be logged in to post a comment.